=====

The Hebrew Names Version (HNV) is an adoption of the World English Bible (WEB). The HNV differs in that it uses improved transliterations for proper Hebrew names of people and places. Like the WEB, the HNV is in the Public Domain, and both are enhancements of the Public Domain version of American Standard Bible (ASV).

The Salkinson-Ginsberg Hebrew (SGH) version of the New Testament is made available for Public Domain publication by permission from The Society for Distributing Hebrew Scriptures (SDHS), PO Box 770138, Lakewood, OH 44107-0015, USA. Being Headquartered at 1 Rectory Lane, Edgware, Middlesex, England, UK.

With regard to the texts and software it distributes, CCAT has made all reasonable efforts to insure that appropriate consent and permission has been obtained from copyright holders of published texts converted into machine-readable form as well as from producers of the electronic form, and thus that fair and permitted use of such materials does not constitute an infringement on copyright. Pertinent information is included in the documentation supplied with the electronic materials. In accepting the machine-readable materials and/or programs listed below, as distributed by CCAT, the recipient agrees to observe the following "fair use" provisions:

- (1) Not to use or make available these materials for commercial purposes without first obtaining the written consent of the owners/encoders;
- (2) To observe any special restrictions that may govern the use of particular texts or bodies of material as stipulated in the aforementioned documentation;
- (3) To control access to the supplied materials and require any other party to whom the recipient supplies any portion of this material to observe these conditions and to register a signed USER DECLARATION form with CCAT;
- (4) When making formal public reference to the materials, to acknowledge appropriately the holder of the copyright to any published text that has been encoded as well as the encoder and the source from which the machine-readable form has been obtained, to the extent that these details are supplied in the aforementioned documentation (unless otherwise noted, CCAT is the legal owner of the software and documentation being distributed);
- (5) To report promptly to CCAT any errors discovered in these machine-readable materials or problems with the software.
